

Preparatory Course for the Fachsprachenprüfung – Medizin for foreign doctors applying for a License in Germany

The Fachsprachenprüfung - Medizin is for all foreign doctors, who are applying for a license to practice medicine in Germany. An official language certificate (Goethe, TestDaF, or telc) is necessary in almost all federal German states today.

The Fachsprachenprüfung tests practice-oriented language skills, oral as well as written (no specialist knowledge) at level C1. It consists of 3 parts (20 minutes each):

1.) Doctor-patient consultation

You conduct a medical history interview with a patient, as is commonly done during treatment. The role of the patient is assumed by an examiner. He or she will give you information about the condition of his or her health. Explain your suspected diagnosis to the patient and make suggestions regarding further examinations/treatment options. Respond to possible questions from the patient.

2.) Written documentation/Doctor's report

In the second part, you should document the medical history and further treatment in writing in German using full sentences. You will receive a prepared form. The goal is to fulfill the general documentation requirement as well as to express understandable and complete information to other physicians.

3.) Doctor-doctor communication

In the third part, you present the patient to a medical colleague during a patient handover. You pass on the information obtained in the doctor-patient consultation to a medical member of the examination team. They discuss suspected and differential diagnoses, diagnostic measures and therapies.

Our Preparatory Course

prepares you verbally for the Fachsprachenprüfung. The specialized vocabulary is a prerequisite or can also be developed concurrently in self-study.

Language Requirement

In order to take part in the preparatory course, you need general knowledge of German at a level B2 or C1, respectively.

→ You can also take the B2 and C1 courses before the preparatory course or Level C1 concurrently with the preparatory course in our regularly-starting intensive courses in the morning. The telc examinations will also be held at our school.

Our Teachers

are especially trained and highly experienced instructors.

Ms Vogel has over 10 years teaching experience in German as a second language, and is a certified examiner for "telc für Medizin".

Ms Eilzer is a teacher for German as a second language and a qualified medical specialist. She has 8 years of practical experience in various medical facilities in Germany.

Methods & Procedure

The focus of the course is:

- oral communication (doctor-patient consultation, doctor-doctor communication)
- written communication (doctor's report)
- conversation structures, example dialogues, applied role plays
- reading and listening comprehension using various media
- specific grammar (subjunctive, nominal style, past tense)
- guided self-study, feedback, correction
- testing simulations

Course Times

The preparatory course is a part-time course taking place three afternoons per week, from 2:30 – 5pm over 8 weeks.

Course Dates

The following course dates are planned for 2017: 15.3.-5.5.; 7.6.-28.7.; 29.8.-20.10.; 24.10.-15.12.

Prices

Course fee :	895,00 €, including registration fee.
Registration fee:	30,00 €
Material, incl. course book, CD, worksheets:	30,00 €

Registration & Info

Kästner Kolleg e.V.

Tannenstraße 2, 01099 Dresden

Tel.: +49 (0) 351 80 36 36 0

www.sprachmobil.com

info@sprachmobil.com